CAMPAIGN ISSUES AND GARDEN ISLAND

Liquor Problem Uppermost But Present Law Is Quite Satisfactory To Other Islands.

The Garden Island in an editorial discussion of campaign issues says: The issues that will be prominent in the coming campaign are slow in being brought to the front; in fact, the liquor question is so far the only thing that has been mentioned as a platform timber.

The question, like taxes and death, will always be with us, even if the liquor shouldn't happen to be with us. There will always be those who want it and those who don't want others to have it and it is but natural for the latter to try a new plan when one fails to give perfect satisfaction.

The present law seems on the whole to give a fair deal to all. There is always room for improvement, of course, but it has been in force for such a short time that it seems but fair rather to amend it a little than to try something entirely new, which in the long run will probably not average higher in results.

The present law practically eliminates outside influence on the liquor policy of the County without subjecting it to the danger that local option would threaten this country with.

We have a population with all kinds of mixtures in it, and a great part of this population has a weakness for the more fiery liquors. The fact that this weakness has been used for political purposes in the past indicates what would happen in the future if all our issues were to turn on liquor. It is not so that it would be the liquor men themselves who would be the corrupting element. On the contrary, it would be the interested politicians without conscience that would use the local option law as a lever with which to hoist friends into office and create some more Ruef-Schultz combinations.

To abolish the liquor question we would need a revolution more radical than the flood, for, as will be remembered, one of the first things Noah did when the trouble was over was to plant vines. As long as we cannot eliminate it, let us at the least try to limit it. The more cooks the worse the broth holds good in this as in many other questions.
